Au Sable in Three River Study

By Willard Bosserman
County Extension Director

The AuSable River is one of three rivers receiving special attention this summer. The other two rivers are the Jordan and the Red Cedar. The purpose of the study is to examine three rivers with differing degrees of deterioration in an attempt to find perimeters that will help locate trouble before it becomes too late to do something about it.

Dr. Niles Kevern, chief of the Fisheries Department at Michigan State University will supervise the program. The study made in 1968 for Grayling township was under his guidance. Much of the material gained in that study will be utilized for the three river study.

The AuSable River Watershed Study Council at its meeting Wednesday, August 29 appointed a committee to come up with some guide lines regarding the removal of dead elms and other trees which fall across the river. They want guide lines that will be satisfactory to property owners. The Department of Natural Resources, Canoe Livery operators and river guides.

Ohio Review Saturday

Special to the Avalanche)

Nearly 4,000 Ohio National Guardsmen have arrived at Camp Grayling for their annual two weeks' training. Joining them are some 558 Army reservists, bringing camp strength to 4,218.

The troops arrived Sunday after two days and nearly 600 miles of accident-free convoy driving from home stations throughout the Buckeye state.

Over half the troops are members of northeastern Ohio's 107th Armored Cavalry Regiment. Other major units include the 216th Engineer Battalion of southern and western Ohio, the 737th Maintenance Battalion of

Residents Invited

Crawford County residents are invited to attend the Ohio Army National Guard's annual Governor's Day Review, Saturday between 10 and 11 a.m. at Camp Grayling. Military police will be at the main gate to direct guests to the parade field.

Newark, the 1485th Transportation Co. of Alliance, 37th Signal Co. of Lakewood and the 437th Military Police Battalion's Company B of Youngstown.

Training is being coordinated by the Emergency Operation Headquarters, Worthington, under the command of Major General Wilbur H. Fricke.

Most units will be spending the entire two weeks in the field, and all will be required to bivouac at least four days. This will include spending 24 hours under tactical, or simulated combat conditions.

Range firing of mortars, artillery, tanks, 3.5 mm rockets, machine guns and other small arms began Tuesday and continues through Thursday.

Annual Army Training Tests will be administered to most units, which also will be under continuing scrutiny of a team of U.S. Army evaluators.

Several VIPs may be visiting the annual encampment of the Ohio Guardsmen. The special commission named by President Richard M. Nixon to investigate the incident at Kent State University, in which four students were shot and killed in a confrontation with the Ohio National Guard, were expected at Camp Grayling Wednesday and Thursday.

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes and Adjutant General Sylvester T. DeCorso are expected Saturday for the annual Governor's Review.

Gov. Rhodes will be making his farewell appearance at Camp Grayling before the Ohio Guard, of which he is commander in chief. He leaves office next January after two terms as governor, the maximum allowed under Ohio law.

In welcoming units to Camp Grayling this week, General Fricke, the camp commander, congratulated the Ohio Guard for "successfully performing every mission it has been assigned during the past year."

"The fulfillment of our mission is not an easy task even in the best of times, in days of crisis it becomes especially demanding and often thankless," he added.

General Fricke, stressing the two-week period as a "high point of the training year," declared that "as the national defense program is being reduced, the need to maintain the strength of reserve forces, their training and performance efficiency is even more vital than in the past."

"The lessons learned here at Grayling will be important, no matter what our future mission, and I look forward to two weeks of hard work," he concluded.

Meeting Notice

UHF-TV Station Granted for Area

TRAVERSE CITY — A construction permit for a million watt UHF television station has just been granted to Northern Michigan Entertainment, Inc., of Traverse City.

According to Thomas Kiple, president of the concern, this will provide the northern Michigan area with a strong 3rd station, and thus, fill in programming and coverage now lacking. The million watt station will broadcast from a 1300 foot tower located on a high terrain ridge near Kalkaska. This combination of power and site will provide a prime signal area covering over 16 counties, starting near Reed City at the south and extending almost to the Soo.

Kiple points out that the station will offer full color and local production facilities and will be dedicated to this area, as well as network entertainment.

Call letters have yet to be assigned, but the station will broadcast on Ultra High Frequency Channel 29. It will be the first UHF station in the area and any viewer with a late model set featuring the UHF station selector dial should be able to receive the signal.

No air date has been set, but construction is scheduled to start immediately.

Work-Activity Program For Handicapped Started

By Roger Safford
Ogemaw County Herald

"We're not a self-sustaining organization," Mr. Ralph Sperry, secretary-treasurer of R.O.O.C., Inc., stated. "Our job is to find work for and help physically and mentally handicapped individuals who are unemployable in the outside labor force."

The organization, an off-shoot of the Michigan Association of Retarded Children, serves a four-county area, that of Roscommon, Ogemaw, Osceola and Crawford counties.

"However," Sperry adds, "we will readily accept any handicapped person from anyplace nearby that can make it to the workshop."

The work-activity headquarters for the organization is in the city of Roscommon.

The handicapped workers are paid for their work, he states. Since it is a non-profit organization, they cannot afford to pay the regular minimum wage.

"Through the Federal and State Wage Deviation certificate, we can pay them less than the minimum wage, but they still receive payment for the work which they have done."

One major problem of the organization is the lack of available transportation for the West Branch students, as well as for the other people working in the activity.

"We need volunteer transportation help from the community," he stressed. "We can't afford to pay mileage, but we can pay gas money."

For most handicapped people, the work-activity organization represents the only place to go after day school and Sperry stresses the need for transportation to get the workers out of their homes and into a work-activity situation that would be both morally and economically rewarding for the person.

The group has been given help by One-Cap of Lake City, who have furnished equipment and a part-time director to help in setting up the work-activity program.

"No worker gets paid for their services," Mr. Sperry said. "All of it is voluntary on their part." The officers of the R.O.O.C., Inc., are Donald Dow of Roscommon, President; Larry Meier, vice-president, of Houghton Lake; and Ralph Sperry, secretary-treasurer, from West Branch.

Their next project is repairing pop cases for the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company.

Art Instructor At Kirtland Attends Convo.

Mr. Duane Bastian, Art Instructor at Kirtland Community College, recently attended the 18th Annual Art Conference and Invitational Exhibition in Ann Arbor, July 16, sponsored by the University of Michigan Department of Fine Arts.

On July 4th and 5th, Mr. Bastian participated in the 4th Annual Traverse City Art Fair displaying approximately fifty of his ceramic pieces. There were 98 exhibitors representing a variety of mediums including painting, weaving, sculpture and ceramics.

On the weekend of July 25-26 Mr. Bastian also participated in the Arts and Crafts Festival at Alpena. Out of nearly a hundred exhibitors, Mr. Bastian was given the honor of being chosen to have an exhibit of his ceramics at the Besser Museum in Alpena, date to be announced later.

BROTHER JOHN

By Oscar Parsons

As I rest here in my easy chair in Ausagra shady lawn. Then why not write a little poem, About my brother, John. A memory has lived with me From years long past and gone.

How we worked and played together, With our brother, John.

How we went to school in winter, When the drifts were deep and long.

Seldom did we lose a day, When our guide was brother, John.

Who got up in the morning Before the break of dawn. To help us wash and pack our lunch.

Most always, brother John. When dad was sick and helpless. And his time was almost gone. He called us to his bedside While he talked to brother John.

He said my son, my trust in you, that you will carry on.

Take good care of my family He said to brother, John. Then he smiled at us, then closed his eyes.

In a short while he was gone. He knew that he could rest in peace.

His trust in brother, John. Those days I well remember How well we got along. With plenty of food and shelter Thanks to brother John.

As we grew up, we scattered out Till most of us were gone. But the ones that stayed The burden fell upon my brother John.

He did not have a college grade To help himself along. But he made good while others failed.

Leave it to brother John. His children now are all grown up.

Married off and gone. But it makes no difference when you call.

They are there with brother John.

His working days are over now. Its flowers and his lawn. He smiles at folks when passing by.

They all know brother John. His many friends that know him best.

Will miss him when he is gone. I know they will say, We never had a better friend than John. He is like the hearthstone in your home.

When the light of day is gone. To give you comfort while you rest.

As we go marching on. And when we reach that milestone.

Where lies that great beyond. No one will be more welcome there.

Than my dear brother John. (paid)

BITS O' TALK

Rosalynne Johnston returned home from a 10 day visit with her sister and brother at the 4 U R Ranch in southern Colorado. It is located about 200 miles south of Denver. She got in plenty of fishing and found it quite a battle compared to fishing the AuSable but well worth the experience. One day was spent at a mountain lake, going by Jeep, fishing for brook trout. They caught their limit every day. They also rode horseback to Wheeler Monument while there.

Mrs. Zelda Gray of Fife Lake spent last Saturday and Sunday here visiting her sister Mrs. Eugene Papendick and Beatrice Gerlinger. Spending Tuesday and Wednesday of last week with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Papendick were Mrs. Papendick's niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. William Wells and boys of Romeo.

Mrs. Mattie Lowe had Mrs. Pearl Purpose of New Bremen, Ohio call on her Wednesday of last week. Also calling on Mattie were Annie Eagen and Mr. and Mrs. Neil Eagen, all of Clio. Her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. William Lowe and son Greg of Bay City spent last week end here with her.

WHEREVER WE LIVE

Harold assured Dave and Tommy that moving day did not mean the end of life for us. In fact, we were not going to the end of the earth. Many people would still be around us. Of course, not our same favorite people . . . whom we will keep on loving even though we don't see them . . . but new friends who would find places in our lives.

And that's the way it happened.

Our new neighbors opened their hearts to us. Our boys brought school friends home with them to play and sometimes to eat dinner.

Best of all, our family found a new church home — among people who welcomed us because they loved God. Anywhere we go in our country, there is always a church where we can worship with other people.

You, too, can find one wherever you move—and right where you are now.

A Black Mark

Irrespective of the defense capabilities of South Viet Nam, advocates of quick U. S. withdrawal discount the danger of communist North Vietnamese reprisals against the population of South Viet Nam. Their sanguine calculations appear to rest on wishful thinking.

An AP dispatch tells of a study of the killings of Vietnamese citizens in the city of Hue in the 1968 Tet offensive. The study shows that the "liquidation" was planned and systematic. The killings occurred in three stages during the 26-day battle for Hue. The AP dispatch said, "It started with the elimination of persons on a blacklist and ended in efforts by the retreating forces to 'leave no witnesses.'" The findings, according to the dispatch, are contained in a report by a U.S. government political analyst regarded as an expert on the Vietcong. The report states that 2,810 bodies have been exhumed at nearly 20 locations south and southeast of Hue. In addition, 1,940 persons are listed as missing.

The communists appear to have succeeded in placing the United States in the position of having to defend its actions against the world while even the most inhuman communist atrocities are accepted as normal and even praiseworthy. Such perversion of thought will ever remain a black mark against civilization.

GOTEBO, OKLA., RECORD-TIMES: "One man tackles the hard job first and keeps on until he completes it. He succeeds, goes up the ladder and pays taxes to help support the government by income payments. Another man does the easy job first and sidesteps the hard one. He fails in business or loses his job and the government helps support him out of the first man's taxes. Nevertheless, most of us would rather be the first man."

Are you steady of nerves, eyes pick you up. He says "Woof!" At that point, you may decide that, by golly, somebody was right in coining that phrase, "There's no place like home." It is an understandable decision, even if you do happen to leave without your berry bucket!

For maximum enjoyment and excitement, guns are ruled out. Aside from that, there are not any other steadfast rules. The "game," if you want to call it that, can be played wherever these big, burly, black rascals are found. Admittedly, though, it is seldom on purpose. Imagine yourself yawning and stretching in the early morning light as you make your way to the cabin window. You peer carefully outside to see what kind of a day it is going to be and, instead, find yourself gazing into a pair of beady little black eyes.

Those eyes are set in a hulking black shape and below them is a wet, black nose only a foot or so from your nose. There is nothing between those two noses but a fragile pane of glass.

Those of us who have tried this feel it is a rather exciting way to wake up. It is, in fact, more awakening than either an alarm clock or the tantalizing odor of early morning coffee. You might call it a supreme test of character since it will possibly show your nerves are so strong you immediately go back to bed. In fact, you may go under the bed.

City folks have a rather hard time adjusting to window-peeping bears. In parts of the wilder north country, though, black bears are so common they are virtually ignored by the natives. If one happens to look in a window, the housewife will probably pull the drapes and go on watching her favorite television show.

Also on record are instances where feather-weight housewives have become annoyed by bears that insisted on upsetting the garbage cans. One such little woman, who hardly weighs a hundred pounds, carefully opened her screen door, took careful aim at the black posterior of a bear with his head in the garbage can, and let fly with a mighty blow from a broom. The strangled bear left hurriedly.

Meeting a bear outdoors on equal footing is always an experience to remember. This is most apt to happen in a berry patch, since bears and humans seem to share this sweet tooth equally.

Picture yourself filling a pail with luscious huckleberries or juicy blackberries. After a while you get a kink in your back so you straighten up for a minute. On the other side of your patch you find another startled picker who has a way of telling you that he thought he was there first. The hackles on his neck spread out as his little black

Thompson Family Reunion

The annual Thompson family reunion was held on Saturday, August 8th at the Hartwick Pines
State Park. There were about 120 members present, making it the largest gathering since it began, 45 years ago.
Nine of the eleven members of the original family were represented. Cards and a beautiful decorated cake were presented to Mrs. Anna Vallad who was to celebrate her 80th birthday the following day.
After dinner, the group was entertained by Robert Vallad with his magician acts. All agreed it was a very pleasant day and promised to return next year.

Almonack

It comes as no real surprise, but the United States government has now confirmed the fact that more people now live in suburbs than in the cities of this country.

The Federal Census Bureau has reported in preliminary findings that from 30 to 35 percent of the people of the United States now live in suburbs—slightly larger percentage than live in the cities.

That leaves about the same percentage living in what the census bureau describes as small towns or rural areas.

As we said, this comes as no surprise to any person who has been keeping even a casual eye on the demographic shifts of our society.

It has been fairly obvious that in proportion,
the core cities have been losing relative population, according to the census bureau. They now have large tax bases; and thanks to the one-man
one-vote court rulings on representation, they now have more members of legislative bodies—local,
state and national.

The biggest question is whether suburbs can coalesce, in a political sense, to take advantage of their actual dominance of our national scene.

But perhaps an even bigger question is one that can be only vaguely formulated at this time. Rural areas, once dominant in our national population, and then the city areas, more recently dominant,

Shift To The Suburbs

As the population of the country shifts, so do the problems. The rural areas turned to big federalism to help solve their problems; the cities are now doing the same. And willing politicians, who scurried to help the farms, are now scurrying to help the cities, with tax dollars the primary weapon of big federalism.

In most legislative bodies, however—primarily the congress—the rural areas have not lost influence in proportion to their dwindling population base. It will be interesting to see whether the cities are likewise able to cling to disproportionate influence in legislative halls, both state and national.

The suburbs, meanwhile, have the catbird seat available for the taking. They now have more people—for the first time in our country's history, according to the census bureau. They now have large tax bases; and thanks to the one-man
one-vote court rulings on representation, they now have more members of legislative bodies—local,
state and national.

The biggest question is whether suburbs can coalesce, in a political sense, to take advantage of their actual dominance of our national scene.

But perhaps an even bigger question is one that can be only vaguely formulated at this time. Rural areas, once dominant in our national population,
and then the city areas, more recently dominant,

both ran into almost insurmountable problems.
Neither could cope with these problems without turning to big federalism for the handout answer to their problems.

Can the suburbs do any better? For just as surely as the shift of population dominance hits the suburbs, so will the shift of problems.

This is because problems are created by people;
their wants, desires, needs, resources, demands, fears, hopes, and other factors of both tangible and intangible nature all become elements of the grand patchwork of problems.

With a small number of people, the magnitude of the problems are relatively small; as the number of people increases, the size of the problems increases apace.

Now the focus of people shifts to the suburbs; shortly—or even right now, in many cases—the focus of problems shifts, too.

The decades of the 1970s and even the 1980s will supply the answer as to whether the suburbs, and the people in them, are capable of solving the problems that come with population growth.

Looking back at our history as a nation—at the evolutionary process that has shifted population dominance from the farms to the cities and now to the suburbs—would indicate that the suburbs, too, eventually will pursue the handout route from big federalism.

Only time, and the future, will tell.

WHAT IS IT? . . . What looks like a huge memorial—a cross standing on its head—is actually the ultra modern structure of a coal mine's winding tower in Germany. It was at this mine that four German miners were trapped by collapsing rock last year. Only two bodies were recovered.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Don't Laugh,
Just Cry

By Jim Fitzgerald

The movie "Patton" was ok and the star, George Scott, was magnificent. But I'm worried about the audience. They kept laughing in the wrong places.

It reminded me uncomfortably of those 1940 war movies which always contained the same cliches:

John Wayne was a Marine on typewriter duty in San Diego, working alongside 16 well-stacked broads. And he hated it. He wanted action. He wanted to kill Japs and Germans He begged his commanding officer for a transfer "to the front". But the officer refused, saying John was too valuable in the typing pool and couldn't be spared and besides, didn't he realize they also serve who only sit and beat off women. John finally got to the front and won the war but it wasn't easy. He had to knock a friendly platoon unconscious and take its place aboard a landing craft at Okinawa. And he had to make a wisecrack every time he socked a buddy, or bayoneted a Jap.

People stamped their feet and whistled when Big John showed those dirty Japs what was what, by God. From the safety of a theatre in Michigan, war appeared to be a glorious endeavor indeed.

It isn't. Not at the front. It's blood and misery and stink and weariness. It's degrading and stupid and cold and hot and lonely and the total loss of your best friend. And any man who says he WANTS to fight, rather than help girls change typewriter ribbons, is automatically suspect. He's never been shot at. Or he's a phony. Or he's a little bit nuts.

General George Patton was part maniac. A pompous, posturing martinet who admitted he loved leading men into battle. He was worried sick that World War II would end before he killed enough Germans to become a national hero. When the Germans quit, he wanted to kill Russians. He was angered by any assignment that didn't pit him against the enemy, nose to nose, blood gushing. He thought he really was John Wayne.

That's exactly the way George Scott portrayed Patton in the movie. To me, it was an anti-war film. When Patton slapped a frightened soldier, or bragged about how many men he had killed, I cringed. I wondered how many more like him are left in the Pentagon. But all around me, people were laughing.

To much of the audience, Patton was a lovable hero. Oh, a little eccentric, of course. But gee, what a man! Look at him terrorize people. Listen to him curse! He's not scared of anyone, by golly.

There was a scene where Patton comforted wounded American boys by telling he'd just seen some German boys in worse shape — there heads were blown off. It made my eyeballs sting. But the man next to me slapped his knee and snorted in delight and admiration.

I shouldn't be surprised that a 1970 audience can be delighted by General Patton, the brute of World War II. Nothing important has changed much in 25 years. We're still a civilization that punches, rather than reasons, and we still admire the guy who punches hardest. When bullies fight on our side, they become heroes.

Washington insiders says President Nixon was much impressed with the movie "Patton." He saw it a second time, just before ordering the invasion of Cambodia.

Good Lord, did Nixon laugh in the wrong places?

FROM FRANK J. CHRISTIAN, PALMDALE, CALIFORNIA: I remember when two boys and I stole a ride in their father's stage coach. We rode in the boot of the coach.

We had to take the rocks out so the coach would ride evenly. After we had ridden five miles, the two boys got to quarreling and their father heard them and stopped. We were driven home and made to put all the rocks back, and I was sent home.

But I shall never forget the boot of a stage coach.

FROM M. DOHERTY, HATTIESBURG, MISSISSIPPI: Only a small town or country boy can remember what fun it was to hunt crawdads along the creek. You could take the larger ones, strip the tail of its protective covering and fry them just as you would shrimp. The tails also made excellent bait for sunfish. The smaller ones you could use whole. Crawfish, like snakes, shed their "outer skin" to grow. Soft craws—those which had shed their skin and had not yet formed another hard, protective outer covering—were the best bait you could find.

Methods Criticized
Michigan may have the most unusual method of picking its Supreme Court members of any state in the union.

Candidates for the court are picked in political conventions held after the primary in August. In November the candidates then are placed on nonpartisan ballots and selected on a theoretically nonpartisan basis.

This is, according to a high court member who is seeking reelection this year, "probably the poorest method in the nation" for selecting members of the court.

Former Chief Justice John R. Dethmers, when asked about the Michigan method, said "I think it's a very poor system."

Many other members of the legal fraternity, as well as Dethmers, have been pushing for years for adoption of the Missouri plan for selection of judges.

Under the Missouri plan, judges from the state Supreme Court on down to the district court level are nominated by a commission made up of persons appointed to it by the courts, the bar association and the Governor. The commission nominates three persons for any judicial vacancy which occurs, and the Governor then names one of the three nominees to the post.

After a period of time, the person appointed as judge is placed on an election ballot along with the question, "Shall this judge be continued in office?" If the majority of voters says yes, then he is retained. If they say no, he is out.

"That system takes the judges out of politics and the politics out of the judges, so to speak," Dethmers said. "I have gone around urging that for quite a few years. I did it at the constitutional convention, but I wasn't successful."

The constitutional convention is responsible for the current selection method. The committee handling the question of election of judges was able to agree on a nonpartisan election of judges.

But it deadlocked on how to nominate judges and finally decided to leave it up to the Legislature. The Legislature also decided to do nothing. As a result, the method in operation before the new constitution was adopted: nominating by political convention was retained by default.

Dethmers finds himself in a rather unusual position as he begins his campaign for reelection to the high court.

Though he has been on the state Supreme Court for 24 years, he is much less well known than any of the three candidates the Democrats probably will field.

The Democrats are expected to make their choice between former Govs. G. Mennen Williams and John Swainson and former Lt. Gov., now Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals, T. John Lesinski.

"My name hurts me, there's no doubt about that," Dethmers conceded. "My strategy this year has to be to get known. When I was first elected in 1947 after two years as attorney general, I was well known, but the position is not one which throws you in the limelight and a lot of water has crossed the dam since then."

The only way a candidate can get known is to spend money and this presents a problem, too, since judges can't solicit funds like other candidates.

"I won't solicit funds, but I expect the Republican Party had better come up with some," he said. "In 1947 I spent (only) a nickel to get elected, and in 1953 I got practically nothing."

"In 1961 I got $1,700 — they got real generous," he said. "Well I can tell you it's going to take more than that this year."

Bear Hunt Planned

A limited bear hunting season in the northern lower peninsula will be allowed again this year by the Department of Natural Resources.

The season will be from Oct. 8-14 and will be limited to 850 permit holders. DNR officials hope it will result in a kill of some 50 bears, the same as last year's season.

DNR will also set a Sept. 10-Nov. 5 bear season in the upper peninsula, the same as a year ago, and tracking dogs will be permitted.

DNR sets the seasons with the aim of allowing hunters a chance to go into the field and kill a bear, while at the same time protecting the state's bear population from losses which it might not otherwise sustain in the winter and spring as a result of disease and other factors.

Robert Bovee Attends College Workshop at University of California

LOS ANGELES — Robert F. Bovee, a member of the board of trustees at Kirtland Community College, participated in a national workshop for two-year college boards of trustees members held July 31-Aug. 2 on the campus of the University of California, Los Angeles.

Thirty members of community college boards throughout the United States, most of them newly elected or appointed trustees, were invited to participate in the three-day workshop to study the rapidly-changing responsibilities of college boards.

The concern of workshop participants focus on improving the ability of colleges to successfully educate their students and the commitment of the two-year community college to this function.

Robert Bovee attended the Invitational National Workshop for new members of the Junior College Board of Trustees for three days and also the National Conference of Junior College Board of Trustees for three days at the University of California in Los Angeles. He then spent three days visiting his father and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bovee of Torrance, Calif.
